

Public Health Minor

The minor in public health offered by the Ila Faye Miller School of Nursing and Health Professions is based on the philosophy of health promotion and disease prevention to improve the quality of life. Students take 4 online courses on the foundational and social issues of public health. Students from a wide variety of majors will find a public health minor attractive as it assists them in broadening their understanding of patterns of health and wellness and its role in our society. For example, students in science, the health professions, areas of law, the military, research, public and community affairs, and the civil service will gain valuable insights from the minor.

Fall	Spring
PUBH 2310 Essentials of Public Health	PUBH 3310 Essentials of Global Health
PUBH 4310 Health Behavior and Health Promotion	PUBH 4320 Essentials of Epidemiology

I believe any major will gain an appreciation for the applications of public health.

Best,

Erlinda Lopez-Rodriguez, DrPH, CNMT
Assistant Professor
Program Director of Wellness
Ila Faye Miller School of Nursing & Health Professions
4301 Broadway, CPO 300
San Antonio, TX 78209
210.283.6474 fax 210.829.3174
elopezro@uiwtx.edu